SAD LIFE OF SHAME ENDED IN SUICIDE

of morphine, Madge Miller, a woman of the half-world, yesterday morning placed a revolver to her head and blew out her brains. When Police Sergt. Eddington and Coroner Clark arrived on the scene a few minutes later the woman was lying dead in a pool of blood. It was decided that an inquest would not be necessary. The tragedy occurred in the Holme rooming-house, kept by Mrs. Stewart, at State and Second South streets. The Miller woman went to the house at an early hour yesterday morning in the company of a female friend, after having spent the night in debauchery. They went to room 90, which had been rented a short time before by a man who was unknown to the landlady and who did not again appear on the scene. The two women were preparing to retire, when Madge Miller asked her companion to go for a pitcher of water, she having just previously sent a measurement of the property of the property of the friend at first refused to leave the room, fearing that the Miller woman intended to commit suicide, but she was finally prevailed upon to go for the water. She had barely reached the hall when a shot was fired in room 90, and the woman who had started after the water, quickly surmising what had companion to go for a pitcher of water, the water, quickly surmising what had

After having swallowed a quantity | gave the slarm, when the police and Coroner were at once notified. The girl who was with the Miller woman left the house before the police arrived and as not identified.

The suicide came to this city, presumably from Denver, about three months ago, and was for a time an in-mate of a resort at 14 Commercial street. She was despondent much of the time and had several times threatened to take her own life. The gun with which she shot herself, a cheap 38-caliper affair, was purchased by her several weeks ago for the purpose for which it was finally used. On the afternoon before the tragedy. It is said, the woman sat in her room for hours, reading from the Book of Revelations in regard to the fate there-in prescribed for the wicked. As she in prescribed for the wicked. As she read she wept bitterly and frequently exclaimed: "Oh, what will God do to me for my awful sins?" A friend tried to cheer her up, but with slight effect. The woman collected all of her letters and, after reading several and weeping over them, burned them, her marriage certificate having been the only paper that was not destroyed.

The marriage certificate shows that the woman was married in Denver i October, 1898, to J. E. Jones. Her maid en name, as given on the certificate, is scarcely decipherable, but Coroner Clark interpreted it to read, "Aurora Tullronwell." It was also learned that her parents live in Portland, Or., and the water, quickly surmising what had the body is held at the Evans under-occurred, ran in fright to the room of taking rooms awaiting word from the landlady further down the hall and them.

UINTAH RESERVE WILL NOT OPEN NEXT FALL

"I hardly think it will be possible for the lovernment to open the Ulntah reservation before the fall of 1905," said Surveyor General E. H. Anderson yesterday, when questioned concerning the Washington dispatch in vesterday morning's Tribune to the effect that the matter of opening the reservation at the time originally set by Congress was up to the Attorney-General's office.

"We would be glad to put an additional force of men in the office it there was anything for them to work on, but there contracts with the Government the engineers field notes are turned in, and under their contracts with the Government the engineers have until September 30, 1904, to complete their field notes. The bill passed by Congress in March, 1903, called for the opening of the reservation October 1, 1904. But by the time notice was received and approval of the plats before alloting to the Indians their share of the reservation October 1, 1904. time will be required for this work. It is my opinion, therefore, that October 1, 1905,

In his efforts to escape conviction on the charge of resorting to a house of illfame John Gotte impersonated a dead man and came very near to the commission of perjury. The denouement of the affair, which occurred yesterday afternoon, was both tragic and laughable.

Gotte and Anna Dickinson were found occupying a room together when the Cacoccupying a room together when the Cactus house on South Temple street was raided Sunday night. Officer Brown did not like the way Gotte talked and put him under arrest. When he was arraigned in court he pleaded not guilty and asserted that the woman with whom he was arrested was his wife. Their marriage certificate, he said, was at their room. The woman also pleaded not guilty.

The case was called Tuesday afternoon and Patrolyman Brown aware that the couple were in the same room at the Cactus. Gotte still insisted that he was married to the woman and that the certificate was in her trunk. The case was continued until yesterday so that the evidence could be secured. To prevent imposition Gotto was ordered to give his lawful name. After a moment's hesitation he said it was John Saunders. The woman was then taken by an officer to the room and secured the certificate. Under the questioning of the police she waskened and confessed that Gotte was not her husband. The man was kept in ignorance of her confession and this led to the dramatic scene in the courtroom.

When court convened yesterday after-noon Gotte was kept outside in the Clerk's effice. The case of Anna Dickinson was called and she entered a plea of guilty. In response to questions by the court she said that her husband had been dead for year and that his name had been Saun-ers. She was fined $10. Then Gotte was

"Do you wish to take the stand; asked the court."
"No. Idon't care to," was the reply. "There is the document to prove I am married."

The city atterney objected to the introduction of the document unless some one identified it. Gotte steadfastly refused to take the stand and the court ruled that the certificate could not be considered without identification. Gotte then said. "I would like to call my wife as a witness."

There was a hush of expectancy in the witness."

There was a hush of expectancy in the room as the spectators who had heard the woman's confession watched her take the oath and go to the witness box.

"I want you to testify whether I am your husband or not," said Gotte.
Mrs. Dickinson, or Saunders, rose from her chair, drew her cloak closer around her and said tragically.
"No, sir; you are not my husband."
Gotte looked surprised and crestfallen, but when the room echoed with laughter but when the room echoed with laughter he saw the furny side of the case and could not repress a smile. He made no further attempt to prove his innocence and the court imposed a line of $50.

DRAMATIC RECITALS GREATLY ENJOYED

Prof. S. H. Clark gave two dramatic reitals yesterday, both of which were wel received and highly appreciated by the large audiences present. The "Julius Caesar" recital in the evening was enjoyed more than the afternoon interpre ation of Eliot's "Armgart," not only because the audience was more familiar with Shakespeare's masterpiece, but besor's ability and affords him an opporunity of appearing at his best.

"Armgart" is a poem of rare poetle uality and beauty, in which, according of the speaker the only objectionable feature is the author's continual desire to metamorphasize. The theme of the poem is the struggle between the demands of t and life. The story of Caesar is too well known

The story of Caesar is too well known to need any repetition, but the interpretation of the characters will ever be a matter worthy of the student's consideration, and it was to this task that the speaker principally devoted bimself. Every character was presented in his true relation and the final picture was a perfect one. The speaker knew every line and word and knew how to group his details to the best advantage. He cast his whole soul into the play and his complete mastery of its every part, combined with his animated voice and enlivening gestures, served to entirely captivate his audience.

The above telegram received by Gov. Wells from the department on education of the World's fair is conclusive assurance that Utah will make a display of the work of her school children at St. Louis. Commissioner Samuel Newhouse also received a message to the same effect, and at a meeting of the Utah commission yesterday afternoon a resolution was passed authorizing the chalrman of the board to con municate with the State Board of Education and have the exhibits gathered as soon as possible. Now that the space has been secured it only remains to collect the exhibits and send them to St. Louis. The commission will appre-priate sufficient money to make a cred-itable display. The appropriation will be made upon the request of the Board of Education. A few matters of minor importance were passed upon at the meeting of the commissioners yes miniature concentrating plant, which is to form one of the principal attrac-tions of the Utah mineral display, has been completed and shipped from Chicago to the Fair City.

His motion was defeated by the 8 to 6 vote. The second communication from the Mayor provides that the office of clerk to the Mayor be created at a salary of $75 per month. It was referred to the Finance committee and the Council adjourned.

WHY THEY CHANGED OVER.

When asked to give some reason for his sudden change of front, Neuhausen, said:

by steadfast Republicans last night over the displacement of some of their number from the official rolls of the city. Especom the official relis of the city, Espe-cially was the dismissal of Health Officer Stewart and Engineer Kelsey, both effi-cient and popular officers, deplored. They have given splendid satisfaction, and have been true Republicans. No tears were shed, however, over the drop of Condie, street supervisor, who, it is believed by many, supported the election of Mayor Morris in the hope of relaining his resimany, supported the election of Mayor Morris in the hope of retaining his posttion.
The hope was generally expressed, how-

GIST OF POLITICAL GOSSIP

The press dispatches say that Judge Hiles is on his way home. He is the man that has proclaimed to the country that former Senator Rawlins is a Mormon. It is supposed that the Judge will have some important things to explain when he gets home. Even the Deseret News has made light of the Judge's blunder. There are some who say that Senator Rawlins is justified in going up to Ogden and laying for the Judge.

Right now the Congress is considering

Right now the Congress is considering whether or not rural carriers should solicit subscriptions to newspapers. There is a husky rivalry of sentiment on this question. The general sentiment is that there should be no interference with this matter. The postal service is supposed to be maintained as an educational agency in this country. It is not regarded as important that it be solf-sustaining so long as the deficiency is traceable to the fact that newspaper publications are responsible for the deficit. It is held that the loss in handling these publications is compensated by the enlightening influences that spring from the circulation of newspapers, and the step that hus been suggested by the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General, prohibiting rural carriers from soliciting subscriptions, is said to be out of harmony with the purpose of the Government. "Educate men and women and they will become good citizens." There is no better means of general education and information than the press, and to interfere with the circulation of legitimate publications is a stroke at publicity that will not be popular if tolerated.

Bryan's black list has included every prominent Democrat that has been men-tioned, and he has resolved on supporting a candidate that the only recommendation he has is his very great wealth, And yet there are Democrats that will insist that Bryan is not in the fight for the money that is in sight for him.

The action of the Gentiles of Salt Lake The action of the Gentiles of Salt Lake City is attracting attention all over the State, and the reports that come from almost every quarter indicate that there is a great willingness of the better class of Gentiles to indorse the movement and to give it their support. Indeed, it is now claimed that there are hundreds of Mormons who nope that the protest of the Gentiles may be made so strong that the church will withdraw from politics and hereafter stick to the spiritual side of Utah affairs. Utah affairs.

Mayor Morris is said to have been pre-Amyor another was a conservative element of his party to quit his "child's play" and attempt to do something for the good of the city. He has been in the hands of his attempt to do something for the good of the city. He has been in the hands of his missavisors for so long that the Democrats of the city, and the so-called Republicans who sided him at the poils, have become thoroughly disgusted. The Mayor was going a gait that cost him friends every day, and now that it is given out that he intends to attempt to be good and to redeem himself, it is in order that he be given a chance before further criticism is offered.

AMUSEMENTS.

Seldom has a play been presented in this city around which so much interest centered as that given at the Grand theatre hast evening by Mrs. Fiske and her capable company, "Mary of Magdala." The drama is one of unusual power, and its presentation is marked by the finish and thoroughness which have ever characterized the productions of this gifted woman and which have caused her name to be placed well up at the top in the list of the world's actresses. The attention to detail is truly wonderful. Opening with a scene at the home of Mary of Magdala, one is taken next to the home of Adults Flavies. Hen to a street scene in Jerusalem, bed to the home of Mary, the curtain going down upon a ravine near Jerusalem, with Calvary almost in sight.

Every one of these scenes is a stage picture, and the costumes and settings are listorically correct. The costumes of Mary of Magdala particularly impress one as being a study of the feelings of the wearer. In the first scene she appears in a deep red gown, characteristic of the wanton. In the second she wears a robe of tinsel, with jeweled headdress and fingers ladened with jewels. Then, after having guzed into the eyes of the Master and feit his influence, she appears in a robe of subdued color, then in black and white, and finally, just after the crucifixion, in pure white. Mrs. Thomas Kearns is expected home, Pinney and William C. Bowdidge took Finney and William C. Bowdidge took place last evening at 9 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Finney. Bishop Barton of the Mormon church performed the ceremony. Only the immediate relatives of the young people were present at the ceremony, which was preceded by a family dinner, at which covers were laid for twenty. and finally, just after the crucifixion, in pure white.

From the scenic standpoint the closing scene has never been excelled, if equalled, m any production seen here. It repress? a rawine near Jerusalem at the time of the terrible storm which is said to have followed the crucifixion of the Man of Gallisee. The thunder rolls and the lightning fiashes in a manner so realistic that the audience almost shuddered while it was in progress. The mob acene was also a revelation.

The play is one of great possibilities, and Mrs. Flake rises to them all, but reaches the greatest height in the fourth act, when she has been told of the betrayal and approaching death of the Master. Here the great audience sat fairly spellbound, seemingly afraid to breathelest the spell be broken. In fact a sort of reverence seemed to pervade the stmosphere during the entire evening, even the applause being subdued. Mrs. Flake is truly a wonderful artist and the many curtain calls received last evening proved how much her art is appreciated here.

Of the remaining members of the company few have roles of importance. However, the was at his best in the scene where he was at his best in the scene where he was at his best in the scene where he was at his best in the scene where he was at his portrayal of the character. He was at his best in the scene where he appears in the terrible storm and bewalls the fact that it was he who betrayed the Son of Man and that his name must so down through the ages as a traitor. Frank Gillmore was very pleasing in the role of Aulus Flavius and Max Figmen made a good Calphas. The minor roles of the play were in capable hands.

Every seat in the house was taken last night and an equally large audience will be present tonight at the closing production of "Mary of Magdala."

ANOTHER DESERVED RAILROAD PROMOTION

Elevation of E. O. McCornick Based on High Merit and Popular all Over the Country.

It pays a great corporation to give prompt recognition to unusual capability. To the fact that this is one of its principal rules is due the great success of the Harriman railroad syndicate. There are few coporations in this counemploy as the Union Pacific, Oregon Short Line and Southern Pacific rail-roads. As soon as this great system went out of the hands of a receiver and into those of individuals who recog-nized true worth in men, it began to make more frequent entries upon the left side of the ledger. All intermountain shippers and trav-

GROCERS AND PEDDLERS IN BATTLE ARRAY

McCormick upon his deserved promo

The retail grocers and pedlers had it out before the License committee of the City Council last night. The grocers are seeeking to have an ordinance passed which will raise the license of the peddiers to such a figure as to put them out try having so many capable men in its of business. In support of their ordinance they have a fierce array of arguments

The grocers contend that the peddlers give short weights and measures and in that way undersell the merchant. One instance was cited of where a bushel of potatoes sold by one of these wagon vendors was afterward weighed and found to be third of a bushel short.

elers were gratified when W. H. Bancroft, general manager of the Short Line, was placed in charge of the Union Pacific system at Omaha upon the retirement of President Burt. Then followed the elevation of T. M. Schumacher, acting traffic manager, to be general traffic manager of the Short Line. And now comes the elevation of E. O. McCormick, in charge of the passenger traffic of the Southern Pacific at San Francisco, to be General Manager Stubba's right-hand man for the entire system, at Chicago.

Mr. McCormick is one of the most thorough railroad men in the entire country. He helped to build up the Monon and C. H. & D. and the Big Four, from Cincinnati, whence he went to the position he now occupies with the Southern Pacific at San Francisco, Success has followed in every position, one peddler also stated that a subject that a stair of the contending factions argued the question and the committee finally decided to lay it all over for a week.

The Pinance committee signed and found to be a third of a busines there is contended that they are already paying higher licenses than the grocers and that there are ordinances which prevent them from giving short measure, or, in the event they do, providing for their prosecution.
